Crack.ChequePro.7.0.2 · iommu ps3 mod crack · Puma 6 ram [rar] Full Game.Q: How to bind a particular file type to a mouse click on double click? The title of this question explains what I want to do. I have tried the following: System.Windows.Forms.AddType("*", "MyClass"); Implementing a class and add it to the form on design-time. The mouse click doesn't fire when double clicking on the form. I would appreciate any help on this! A: Checked the forms designer, if you have file type association the your file (with the handler you would like to fire) is not included in the project. Use the project manager to add your handler (like the mousedoubleclick for button) and then add your file type association.
